CHILDREN TEETHING

MRS. WINSLOW'S

SOOTHING SYRUP,

For Children Teething.

greatly facilitates the process of teething by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation—will allay all pain and spasmodic action, and is

Sure to Regulate the Bowels.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it, what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW," after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation has been used with NEVER FAILING SUCCESS in

Thousands of Cases.

It not only relieves the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve Griping in the Bowels and Wind Colic.

We believe it the BEST AND SUREST REMEDY IN THE WORLD, in all cases of DYSENTERY AND DIARRHOEA IN CHILDREN, whether it arises from teething or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints—DO NOT LET YOUR PREJUDICES, NOR THE PREJUDICES OF OTHERS, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be SURE—yes, ABSOLUTELY SURE—to follow the use of this medicine, if timely used. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle.

Be sure and call for

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup,"

Having the fac-simile of "CURTIS & PERKINS" on the outside wrapper.

Sold by druggists throughout the world.

No Surrender to Fraud!

The Oregon Infamy has plainly shown to whoever had been hitherto leniently skeptical, that Mr. Samuel J Tilden has determined to exhaust every resource of chicanery and fraud to secure the office of President. In the light of the past campaign he stands revealed as the champion of a political villany which has comprehended every outrage upon the rights and sentiments of a free people, from the wholesale massacre and intimidation of citizens in the South to the subornation of the Governor of a State to perjure himself under his oath of office and commit a crime against the people of the United States unprecedented and unparalleled in our political history.

Mr Tilden will not and cannot succeed in this high handed attempt to "bull-doze" the people of a whole Nation, and the whole land should ring out in denunciation of an infamous attempt to usurp the Chief Magistracy of this Republic, in which the monstrous proceeding in Oregon forms but a single feature Of that outrage the following despatch briefly tells the story

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec 6 Later advices from Salem, Oregon, confirm the report that the Governor issued certificates to Odell and Cartwright, Republicans, and Cronin, Democrat.

The latter declined to show his authority at the meeting of Electors, and the Republicans refused to recognize him Cronin then elected J N F Miller and John Parker as Republican Electors, and proceeded to cast the vote—2 for Hayes, 1 for Tilden

The Republicans organized. Watts resigned, was at once re-elected, and their votes cast for Hayes and Wheeler, which, with their sworn statement and copies of the abstract of votes cast in the State, certified to by the Secretary of State, seal attached, were sealed and sent on.

Intense excitement prevails and an outbreak is expected by many who went to the State House prepared for any emergency The Republicans are holding an indignation meeting this evening

The State of Oregon on the 7th of November declared emphatically for Hayes and Wheeler giving all three Republican Electors a large majority One of these being charged with ineligibility by reason of holding the office of post-master, the Governor and Secretary of State both Democrats, set the expressed will of the people, the laws of the State, the principles of common honesty and their oaths of office at defiance, by issuing a certificate of election to a Democrat who had never been elected, and who has no more right to cast an Electoral vote for Oregon than has Tilden himself The case is one of a rascality that admits of no dispute, the principle that a defeated candidate obtains no title to election through the disqualification of one for whom a majority of votes have been cast, having been as firmly established in law and parliamentary practice as it is based upon the most obvious rules of equity and common-sense Neither Tilden nor his supple tool can plead ignorance and they do not care to pretend it The first chuckles in the faces of the people over what he deems a smart trick, and meets their indignation with the cool effrontery with which his old associate Boss Tweed sneered at the public "What are you going to do about it"

We have no doubt that Mr Tilden will ascertain what the people are going to do about it and that they will find occasion to give him plainly to understand that no man can make himself President of this Republic through such barefaced and indecent outrage upon the principles of Republican government

That he will find a large number of his followers ready to indorse any enormity that promises to aid them toward the public crib is to be expected and no one is surprised to find the minor organs of scoundrelism in Maine applauding the Oregon infamy as they applauded the prowess of the Tammany Ring when Tilden was fortifying it in the power used for the gigantic robbery of the people of his State

We said long ago that the issue of the Presidential contest was between loyalty and revolution, between the intelligence and integrity of the people on the one hand and the organized ignorance and depravity of the land on the other It is becoming more clearly manifest every day, and even the blind who cannot see may now hear what is going on around them

The duty of the people is to stand firm as a wall of adamant against any and all attempts to push a dangerous man into the Presidential Chair by means of fraud as a pretext and threats of revolution as the only arguments

Rutherford B Hayes and William A. Wheeler have been duly chosen by the people in a majority of the States to take their places at the head of the administration of the United States, and every interest of the country—nay, the very preservation of the principles of free government, demand that in this great National crisis there shall be absolutely no surrender to fraud!

ATTEMPTED BRIBERY. The Boston Journal's Washington special says "The fact that corruption was attempted in some of the Electoral Colleges South, seems no longer to admit of a doubt. This morning despatches were received in this city stating that there was reason to believe that an attempt was to be made to-day to purchase one of the Hayes Electors in South Carolina. By a singular coincidence Governor Chamberlain shortly afterward telegraphed from South Carolina that an offer had been made to one of the Hayes Electors of $10,000 cash and $40,000 afterward if he would decline to vote for Hayes. The Elector approached was a colored Republican, whose loyalty to his party, it appears, is superior to corruption."

[illegible] Mr. Tilden an office which he has not been elected [illegible] with overwhelming success. Prof. [illegible] rather harsh [illegible] could [illegible] The second proposition, which was a request to Gov. Hayes to refuse to accept the office before he knew he would secure it, seems to have stirred up the wrath of Mr. Halstead of the Cincinnati Commercial, for he attacks it at some length, saying among other sharp things: "Now the architect of this edifice of insolence has never once had it on his mind to ask Mr. Tilden whether he is not ashamed to accept the Presidency from the hands of the inhabitants of haunts of crime in New York. There is no pathetic cry to Mr. Tilden to pause before he rushes into an office tendered him, as the collated statistics of the Nation show, by the ignorant, the vicious, the rebellious, and the dishonest; for without the swarming inhabitants of the worst quarters of New York, where Boss Tweed rallied his grand army, that State would have been for Hayes by 30,000 majority There is no alarming shriek to the Governor of New York to beware of a Presidency that he will owe to the murderous employment of the shot-gun and the derringer, though it is notorious that these were the potent arguments employed effectively in Mississippi and Alabama. The austere editor of the Nation does not rush forward with extended hands to expostulate with Tilden for thinking of touching an office the pathway to which is stained with innocent blood There is Louisiana spotted with murder done for Tilden and Reform, but the voice of the conservative whangdoodle is not heard in that part of the land The editor of the Nation does not dandle the Mississippi plan before him on a silver oyster fork, and tell him that it is so bloody and shameful that even an iron-clad old lawyer must not allow himself to be tempted thereby But there is an awful faint-heartedness and tenderness of toes about the acceptance of the Louisiana vote by Hayes"

RANDALL'S RULINGS.

[From the Boston Advertiser]

Mr Randall will make a brilliant Speaker A more extraordinary ruling than that which he made yesterday was never imposed upon a deliberative body. The facts were these? A resolution from the Democratic side was reported to have received exactly the two-thirds vote necessary to suspend the rules and pass it The name of Mr Plaisted of Maine was omitted, however, although he had voted against the resolution He claimed, and after much opposition of which it would be impossible to speak in terms of too strong condemnation, the speaker conceded the right to have the mistake rectified Then Mr Fuller of Indiana said that he had voted in the affirmative, and claimed the right to have his vote recorded This was conceded, of course Still the Democrats lack one vote Then arises Mr. Randall Speaker of the House of Representatives, and says that if he had known that his vote was necessary to carry the resolution, he should have voted, and he asks the privilege of voting. Gracious heavens! Is the Democratic party "going back on" the doctrine of "a fair count of votes actually 'cast'?" But the incident was not at an end Both sides agreed to a new vote "All right," says Mr. Speaker Randall, "I vote yes The resolution is carried" The dear innocent supposed that the House agreed to a new vote for his sole, peculiar benefit A Republican member objected, but he was not listened to. If the Journal Clerk is not puzzled by the problem presented to him how to record the result, his ingenuity is equal to any test Let us see If only the names of Messrs Fuller and Plaisted are added to the lists to Monday's record, the resolution is lost If Mr Randall's name is also added the record is falsified If the new vote of yesterday appears on the journal, it will give rise to the question whether the Speaker's vote can be given alone,—in short, whether he is really a quorum, or, like the English stockholder, merely a cygus

THE LOUISIANA ELECTION

THE DECLARATION OF THE OFFICIAL CANVASS

[Special Cor N Y Times]

NEW ORLEANS, Dec 6 Shortly after 6 o'clock this evening the Louisiana Returning Board, after being continuously in session for eighteen hours concluded the canvass of the Presidential vote. They did their duty under the law fearlessly, faithfully, and well, Right and justice have triumphed in spite of threats, fraud, violence, and murder, and Rutherford B Hayes will receive the Electoral vote of this State by a majority of over 3,000 The majority for the lowest Elector is 3,439, and for the highest 4,567 The result has been obtained by the strictest adherence to the law, and by the throwing out of only such polls as were proved beyond all question to have been controlled by violence or fraud The misprint tickets, which bore the names of only part of the Hayes Electors, were only counted for those candidates whose names appeared on them, hence the difference between the vote for the highest and lowest Elector. The State Legislature will be Republican by a majority of 24 on joint ballot, the majority in the House being 20, and in the Senate 4. This secures the election of two Republican United States Senators, one to fill the seat made vacant by the expiration of Mr West's term, and the other to serve for two years in place of Pinchback, whose election was declared illegal The gentleman elected in West's place will serve for six years Gov Kellogg is a prominent candidate for this position The Congressional delegation will be four Republicans and two Democrats

The result was not generally known in New Orleans until late to-night. During the day people of all classes had been waiting with great anxiety for the announcement, but when it was made there was but little excitement and no demonstration of any kind. A few of the Democratic leaders protest against what they call the illegal counting of the vote for Congressmen, and claim that they have been cheated out of two Representatives, but regarding the Presidential vote they say little or nothing. During the evening a number of Democrats received sensational telegraphic reports from Oregon, to the effect that the Governor of that State had given a certificate to one of the Tilden Electors, and for a time there was a great deal of noise and some cheering among that peculiar class of society known in the South as "our wild young men." But this soon died out and the city resumed its ordinary quiet.

H. C.

ONE DISGUSTED DEMOCRAT writes to the New York Tribune: "I have been waiting for some time to see if there was not a representative Democrat in the country who had manhood enough to protest against the unfair means which the Democratic party is using to get power. I voted for Samuel J. Tilden, as I supposed he was an honest man, but if he will accept the highest [illegible] through a legal technicality in Oregon, or through bribery in Louisiana and Florida, he is not fit to occupy that high position. If the leaders of the Democracy are so blinded by partisanship that they descend to this means which they are now employing, they will find at the next election that the masses of the country Democrats are made of other material."

We recently gave quotations from the views expressed by the most prominent Democratic Senators at the last session emphatically insisting upon the sole jurisdiction of the President of the Senate in the matter of counting and declaring the Electoral votes; and as an effort has been made to obscure the sudden change of front by the Democrats on this question, by asserting that Senator Morton and other Republican Senators advocated a different view, we quote from a report of the Committee on Elections submitted by him May 28, 1874.

It will be remembered that Mr Morton has earnestly advocated a measure to remedy the defects in the present system of electing the President and Vice-President, and the report was in obedience to a resolution of the Senate instructing the Committee to examine and report the most practicable mode of election and for adjusting and deciding all contested questions connected therewith. The report set forth the defects and difficulties of the present system and proposed a Constitutional Amendment providing a method of voting by Congressional Districts, with two votes at large in each State Without referring to the features of this proposition we call attention to the construction placed by the report upon the present Constitutional provision for the counting of the Electoral votes, as follows

THE HOUSES MERE WITNESSES

The Constitution provides that the President of the Senate shall be the depository of the Electoral votes of the States, and that he "shall in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted." It has been generally conceded that this means that the two Houses shall be present in their separate characters, and not as a joint convention, that they cannot act and vote as one body, that the two bodies cannot deliberate and act as separate bodies in each other's presence; that they are simply brought together to witness the result of the opening and counting of the vote as reported by the President of the Senate. The fact that tellers have been generally appointed by the two Houses in no wise affects the question, for they are mere facilities to actually count and make record of such votes as the Vice President hands to them for that purpose

POWER OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE

The report cites numerous precedents in our history on this point, and says it was probably contemplated that the President of the Senate, in opening and counting the votes "should perform a merely ministerial act of which the two Houses were to be witnesses and to make a record" But the report goes on to say with emphasis

But the exercise of these high powers may devolve upon him ex necessitate rei, and whatever decision he may make between the two sets of Electors and upon the sufficiency and validity of the record of the votes—whether on the evidence of the right of the Electors to cast votes, or whether they have been cast in the manner prescribed by the Constitution—his decision is final

THE COLORADO INSULT

[Washington Despatch]

Democrats like Holman, Sayler and Cox characterize the action of their party in excluding the member from Colorado as a disgraceful blunder Holman says that his purpose in moving an adjournment before the vote was taken was in order to gain time for wiser counsels, but he had to withdraw his motion to prevent crowding out the Hewitt resolution The Democrats now say that the Judiciary Committee will endeavor to correct the blunder by an early report in favor of seating the Colorado Representative. Colorado men here say the insult thus cast upon the new State will result in making it permanently Republican An official of the State Department, who has carefully examined the history of all the new States since Iowa came in, declares that in no enabling act were the conditions so literally complied with as in that of Colorado

The squarest remark we have seen in any Boston paper for many a day is this from the Journal

Wade Hampton declares that Governor Chamberlain ought to be in the Penitentiary If Wade Hampton had lived in any other country than this and pursued the course he did a few years ago, he would now be in exile or somewhere else

The writer might have added that if a pardoned traitor in any other country had organized such a revolutionary and bloody conspiracy as Hampton has been heading for the past few months, he would stand a chance of summary dealing

THE DIFFERENCE A citizen of New York thus aptly describes the difference between the moral impulses of the two candidates

Mr Tilden was willing to be elected by a vote in Vermont or Rhode Island if he could get one through a technicality, though he knew the people in both States had rejected him. So now in Nebraska and Oregon If the end can be achieved the means are not to be considered How Gov Hayes would spurn an election similarly secured!

"Perley" writes to the Boston Journal that "Senator Blaine was highly honored in the reconstruction of the Senate Committees. He was made a member of the leading Committee on Appropriations, and also of the Committee on Naval Affairs—There is no new member of the Senate that has no important an assignment."

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY FOURTH CONGRESS, Second Session

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec 7

The report from the Printing Committee favoring the printing of the Sherman Louisiana report, was opposed by several Democratic Senators

Mr Thurman said he did not object to the printing of these papers because he wanted to suppress the publication of any facts but he did not want public opinion to be forestalled by the premature publication of only a part of the facts If this matter should be delayed until all the testimony was fully produced, as it would be shortly he would not object to its publication He commented on the action of the Louisiana Returning Board and said this was the third time the Board had set aside the will of the people of that State The matter concerned not the State of Louisiana but the whole Republic, and he (Thurman) wanted to scrutanize the testimony upon which this extraordinary result had been reached by the Board

He referred to the secret sessions of the Board the conversion of an apparent majority of 7 000 for Tilden into a majority of 4 000 for Hayes, and said the failure of the Board to fill a vacancy with a Democrat was an evidence of guilt He protested against the publication of the depositions and moved they lay on the table until the other side should be heard from

Mr Morton said the Senate had the singular spectacle here of the denunciation of the Returning Board of Louisiana for fraud while at the same time resistance was made to laying before the country the evidence upon which the action of that board was based The Democratic committee in New Orleans was invited by the Republican committee to publish the testimony taken by it together with that taken by the Republicans, but the Democrats were not willing to make public their case as it was before the Board They wanted to wait to get more testimony and thus have a case which was not before the Board They thus confessed that they were not satisfied with their case, but wanted to make a new one This free denunciation of the Returning Board was unfair If the Board acted unfairly let the Democrats bring forward their evidence to that effect. He was not afraid of the testimony The more, the better

Mr Thurman said he did not know why the Democratic committee in New Orleans declined to furnish their testimony to the Republicans but had he been a member of the Democratic committee he would have refused to furnish the testimony, and he thought the committee right in refusing to furnish their testimony, so that the Republicans might make up their own verdict and send it to the President

Mr Morton said all the ingenuity that could be brought to bear on the other side could not change the dilemma in which the Democrats were placed When the Republican committee in New Orleans offered to lay the whole testimony of both sides before the country the Democrats declined to furnish their side and when the Republicans came forward to publish what they had they were asked by the Democrats not to do so

Mr Sherman defended the action of the committee with which he acted and said the committee presented every particle of the testimony they could get They tried to get it all on both sides, but could not do so He argued that it was on the testimony now before the Senate that the decision of the Returning Board was made

House

Mr McCrary offered a resolution for a joint committee to report a measure either legislative or constitutional to provide for the adjudicating of all questions arising as to the counting of the Electoral votes Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr Frye presented a protest from the Colorado Legislature against the refusal of the House to admit to his seat the member-elect from that State Referred to the Judiciary Committee

Mr Beebe of New York, was appointed on the Louisiana Committee in place of Lynde, excused

Mr Wood of N Y asked leave to offer a resolution calling on the President for copies of all orders and directions emanating from him or from any of the Executive Departments of the Government to any military or civil officer with regard to the services of the army in Virginia, South Carolina, Louisiana and Florida

Mr Hasson of Iowa objected

The House at 1 45 adjourned, the Democratic members remaining in the hall to attend a caucus.

The debate was continued at length, the Democrats opposing the printing of the documents In the course of some remarks Bayard, of Delaware, said in the present attitude of affairs there must be no shuffling, every Senator must stand on the rock of law and truth, etc.

The Oregon Infamy

Mr Sargent, of California, said the Senate had been told there must be "no shuffling, no party trick in this Presidential matter," that the "people would not tolerate any such things" He concurred in these statements. He then alluded to the action of the Governor of Oregon in issuing a certificate as Elector to Cronin, a Democrat, on account of alleged ineligibility of Watts, Republican, and said the people of Oregon had been defrauded out of an intelligent vote which they gave, by this action of the Governor. This was a partizan trick," it was "shuffling"

An Outrage Upon Law

Mr Sargent then quoted at length from the laws of Oregon and argued that under the laws of the State in the case of a vacancy from any cause, whether ineligibility or otherwise, the other Electors were authorized to fill such vacancy He also quoted from a decision of the New York Court of Appeals, to the effect that a person receiving a minority of votes cast at an election, could not be considered elected on account of the ineligibility of another candidate

The Senate's Own Precedent

Mr. Sargent also quoted from the case of Vance vs. Abbott, a contested election case before the U. S. Senate, in which the Senate decided that the disabilities of Vance, a Democrat, did not have the effect of electing Abbott his Republican opponent to a seat in the Senate from North Carolina. The Democratic Senators were unanimous in holding this view and supporting the decision.

The Law of the State Defied.

He next read from the law of Oregon requiring the Governor to deliver to the Electors their certificates and said instead of the Governor doing so he delivered them to Cronin. He asked if any Senator could defend this action of the Governor of Oregon.

A Weak Evasion

Mr. Merrimon said that there had been many respectable decisions both ways on the subject of whether the person receiving the next highest number was entitled in such cases to election.

Mr. Sargent denied that any officer had a right to defeat the will of the people as had been done by the Governor of Oregon. Mr. Sargent said that he hoped the Democrats would examine the nefarious proceedings of their Governor in Oregon and when they could clear their skirts of that action let them denounce the Returning Board in Louisiana.

Senator Morton Presses the Outrage Home

Mr. Morton said the case could not be found where a minority candidate had been elected on account of the ineligibility of the person receiving the majority of votes cast. The question had been settled just the other way in the Senate and had also been so decided in the House of Representatives in the case of John Young Brown of Kentucky The conduct of the Governor of Oregon could find no justification in law, in morals or in the intelligence of the people of the United States of all parties

Thurman Ashamed to Defend the Outrage.

Mr Thurman said he was not prepared to discuss the subject now

The question being on the report of the Committee on Printing to print the depositions taken in Louisiana and sent to the President by Mr Sherman's Committee It was agreed to, yeas 40, nays 13 Messrs Key, McDonald, Randolph Wallace and Kernan, voting with the Republicans in the affirmative

Investigation Proposed.

Mr Mitchell, of Oregon, introduced a resolution instructing the Committee on Privileges and Elections to investigate the facts attending the action of the Governor of Oregon and the Secretary of State in respect to the Electors and pretended Electors and report the same to the Senate and for this purpose they may employ a stenographer, send for persons and papers administer oaths and examine witnesses Ordered printed and to lie on the table

Unauthorized Electors

Mr Howe introduced a bill providing the punishment by fine of $10 000 and imprisonment of ten and five years respectively of any unauthorized person who shall in any way assume to act as an Elector for President and Vice-President, and of any person who shall convey any certified list, knowing the person so certified to be unauthorized to act Referred to the Judiciary Committee

Mr Edmunds gave notice that he would call up to-morrow the proposed Constitutional Amendment in relation to counting the vote for President and Vice-President The Senate at 5 o clock adjourned

The Election of Hayes.

CONNECTICUT SALUTES IT WITH A HUNDRED GUNS.

HARTFORD, Dec 7 The Republicans will fire one hundred guns to morrow at noon under the direction of the Republican State Committee in honor of the election of Hayes

A PUBLIC INDIGNATION MEETING

The Governor Denounced as a Violator of his Oath.

GROVER BURNED IN EFFIGY.

Republican Indignation Meeting at the State Capital.

NEW YORK Dec 7 A Salem, Oregon despatch says "The Republicans held a meeting here last night to consider the action of Governor Grover, at which resolutions were passed denouncing him and calling upon the U S Senate to prevent him from taking his seat on the ground that he has wilfully violated his oath Prominent Republicans advised a calm expression of public opinion and it is now thought no outbreak will occur

A Doubtful Version

Odell Cartwright and Cronin seated themselves at a table and organized by electing Odell, chairman Watts offered to leave the room but as the other Democrats, helpell and Laswell, refused to leave, he remained At the request of the other Republicans, Watts then tendered his resignation as Elector Odell and Cartwright severally demanded their certificates of Cronin who refused to surrender them After some time Cronin asked if they refused to act with him Odell and Cartwright said no, very emphatically, but demanded that their authority to act should be shown Cronin then left the table, the Republican Electors having made no objection to co-operate with him and after calling in Miller and Parker organized his Electoral College as before reported

The Hamptonites and the Court.

The Hampton Faction.

COLUMBIA, Dec. 7. The Democratic House appointed a committee to inform the Senate and Gen Ruger that it was the legal House under the decision of the Supreme Court and requested the latter to withdraw the troops from the State House

The Senate and Mackey House passed a bill authorizing any qualified officer to administer the oath to the Governor. A few minutes past one the Republican members of the Senate marched to the Mackey House, where Governor Chamberlain was inaugurated and sworn in by Probate Judge Boone He delivered a short inaugural.

The Governor's Inaugural.

He said he accepted the office to which by the majority of the people a second time been called, with a knowledge of its grave responsibilities and difficulties. No consideration but duty impelled him to accept. He regarded the present hour in South Carolina as a crisis at which no patriotic citizen should shrink from any public post to which he was called. "The present struggle is in defence of the foundations of our government and institutions. If we fail now the government of South Carolina will no longer rest on the consent of the governed, expressed by the free vote of a majority of the people." After delivering his inaugural the Legislature adjourned.

The President is determined not to agree to this Chamber at present and is equally determined not to yield and contemplates dissolution without shrinking. The Senate will support the President, but the Deputies seem inclined to hold out against him on the dangerous ground of the Budget.

Steady Nerves are Attainable Blessings

There are many who have never known the blessing of strong nerves, having been born with weak ones. Those who have, and through disease or some other cause, have suffered a loss of nerve power, only by trial, have fully appreciated the wealth of that loss. The true way to regain it is by invigorating the system through the medium of pure blood, and the unfailing means of purifying, revitalizing and toning the whole system is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which restores the blood to healthy vitality, and thereby imparts to the nerves the strength which they require. Dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, kidney complaints, and all kindred ailments, are always relieved by this genial invigorant, which is for sale by druggists and dealers generally.

CHIPS.

BY DAISY VENTNOR

Mrs. Dunbar looked rather incredulous, but went away, as he desired, when Chips entered. Alan scanned the child from head to foot as she walked over to his sofa. She was neatly dressed, and the elf-locks had transformed themselves into curls; but her eyes were swollen, as if with excessive weeping, and she looked up in his face with a pitiful expression that wasn't very appealing.

"Come here, Chips," said he gently, raising himself on the sofa, and stretching out his hand. "I want to hear all about it."

The child's features worked painfully, and with a gasp she flung herself down at his feet.

"Oh! I didn't, I didn't do it; indeed, dear sir, I never touched the money. You, that was so kind, so handsome—and a sick soldier, too! I never took it! Oh! please, sir, do believe me!"

Sob after sob poured forth with a violence that was extraordinary in so young a child; and she kissed his hand again and again, as she clung to it, with that odd mixture of love and reverence in her queer, old-woman's ways.

"Hush!" said Alan, soothingly, "hold up your head, Chips. I shall not condemn you until I have heard your story. Tell the truth no matter whether you're afraid or not. I believe you are an honest little girl."

A faint smile came over her face, and she tried to stop crying.

"You see, sir, I was so sorry you were sick again, and the servants said you would never get well. One night I sat down in the dark, near your door, and cried, 'cause I was afraid you'd die. I sat there ever so long in the dark, and I 'spose I must have gone to sleep, 'cause when I woke up the gas was turned down very low in the hall. As I were rubbing my eyes your door opened softly, and Richard came out. He didn't see me at all, for he turned to go up the hall instead of down, and when he got under the gas stopped and looked at something he had all crumpled up in his hand. 'Only a ten,' says he, but out loud I thought it were a twenty; and then he went up stairs. Your door was left open, just a little crack—and, oh! do forgive me! but I wanted to look at you so bad that I pushed it open far enough to see if any one else were in the room. You were all alone and fast asleep, and I stole in on my tiptoes, so as not to wake you up. After I'd looked at you for a minute I felt as if I should cry out loud, so I crept off a little way;—there, by the table. The first thing I saw there was a heap of money in a little box drawer that stood a little open. Oh sir! I'd never seen so much money before—bills and gold dollars too! I was real wicked, I thought, he'll never know, and I can just take one and it'll buy me a new pair o' shoes and some warm stockings, too maybe,' so I pulled it open a little more and I took one up in my hand, and looked at it, and it shone real bright in my eyes. But just at that very minute I thought about the young lady—the nice, sweet, pretty young lady, that has our upper front room. She's been trying to teach me to read, sir, and one day she says to me 'Chips you mustn't never take things that doesn't belong to you, remember, dear, th't God sees you always!' She said it so sober, like and looked right down in my heart with her soft, bright eyes. So while I stood with the money in my hand I thought I heard her say, ever so softly in my ear 'Chips, never take things that aren't yours,' and, oh! then the money seemed to burn my fingers, and I put it right down on the pile again. But the very queerest thing was, that when I put the money back, a card, like, fell down on the floor out of the drawer; and there as I picked it up in my hand, was just the bu ti fullest picture of Miss Leslie herself

My God!" Alan gasped for breath, and grew deadly white as he fell back on the pillows. Chips gave a frightened scream, and clambered on the sofa. He made a desperate effort to control himself.

"It's nothing, said he, faintly. There! raising himself with a smile, "don't be frightened my child—only go on! Miss Leslie—what!" Chips' eyes brightened, and she drew a long breath.

"Please, sir—Miss Leslie Kingsland—do you know her?"

Known her? Found at last! My queen my darling! Chips, with an involuntary laugh at his own outburst, and the child's bewildered face. "I'm not crazy quite yet, though you might be pardoned for thinking so. Go on with your story—I can wait a little longer." This last sentence was said tenderly and confidentially communicated to the pillows.

"I'm all!" only Richard came in as I was standing there crying, with Miss Leslie's picture, and he snatched it away out of my hand, very red and angry, and dragged me out of the room in awful hurry. And he told Mrs Dunbar that I'd took ten dollars out of the drawer! Oh! I never did! Won't you forgive me for being so wicked as to touch the gold? I did truly put it right back—all because of pretty Miss Leslie—before I saw her picture. Don't put me in jail! I'll work for you day and night, 'cause—cause—I love you. And down went Chips in floods of tears at his feet again.

It might have been because of his extreme weakness, or perhaps, sympathy for poor Chips utter despair but certainly tears fell through Alan's clasped fingers on her head.

Look up here, Chips," he said, ever so tenderly, laying his hand on her shoulder "I'm all right—be comforted! I have no doubt you have told the truth, and you were a good child to struggle with the temptation. Your accuser I will attend to. Then after a pause, during which he felt sure he could hear his own heart beat, Chips I want to hear more about Miss Kingsland. She used to know me once." Did she?" and Chips' eyes danced. "Isn't she pretty? But she's got thin and pale this winter and has a cough you know. She lives in our room, with her aunt another Freddy he's about twelve years old and she works for the tailors. You see I'd been down there to tell em (the tailor folks) that Miss Leslie'd bring the vest next day—that night when you came out in the snow. Please, sir, I'd like to go back and see Miss Leslie, if I might come here again after. Can I go some day soon?"

But Alan's thoughts were far distant, and it was some moments before Chips got her answer. He was thinking of the brutal scene in Baltimore, that he knew before the year began, and of Leslie Kingsland, prouder and fairest of Baltimore belles, when he met her first. Of the sad changes that the war had wrought in the Kingsland fortunes, how the proud old father tried to weather the financial storm and failed—reduced in one blow from wealth to absolute penury. How the Kingslands had totally disappeared from their former circle, and how widely and vainly he had searched for trace of Leslie when he came back from the front, on leave, a year ago. Leslie—beautiful, petted Leslie—whom he never yet dared tell how fondly he adored her—reduced to this! Thank God! he could rescue her from such a lot! He bitterly regretted his arm now, Leslie was such a staunch patriot, and, perhaps, his loss would make her—Never mind! And Chips, the little clue by which his hand had found, his lost love, with a start he woke from his abstraction, and spoke.

"Chips verily you were an angel in disguise! Yes, you shall go and see Miss Leslie perhaps, to-morrow, if I'm well enough to drive—for I mean to go with you. Run along you elf, and send my mother to me. And, d'ye hear? no more tears Chips!"

"Mother mine, are you ready to welcome a daughter?" was his mischievous greeting to Mrs Dunbar, "for I have serious thoughts of sending Chips to be educated, and marrying her when she grows up."

"What's the matter now?" said she, resignedly.

"Only I've found her! My lost pearl! my lovely Leslie Kingsland! Better than all your army of surgeons, madre mia! I shall arrest Chips with a medical degree instanter. Get on a fine dress to-morrow, or I fully intend bringing Leslie home, if mortal man can do it." This, and much more nonsense, was all that poor Mrs. Dunbar could get out of him for a good half-hour, until she playfully threatened him with a strait-jacket, and a dose of physic, when he concluded to be rational, and told her the whole story. And his mother, entering, as usual, into her boy's happiness, promised to give the fair unknown a loving welcome.

The sun that streamed so brightly into Alan's bay-window, shone on a very different scene the next morning. A few bright tears fell from Leslie Kingsland's eyes over her coarse work, as she looked around the scantily-furnished room, and she shivered, and moved an inch or two nearer the very small fire. It was a little cold day, and unless some very unexpected event happened to-night, she knew that there was no more fuel to be obtained—for she was literally without a cent. She might sell the canary-bird, but then—
